Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 21 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Showers or longer spells of rain, windy with coastal gales.

Today:
Cloudy with showers or some longer spells of rain, these heavy and prolonged at times. Windy for much of the day, with gales along the Suffolk and Essex coasts, but tending to ease a little towards evening. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloudy with further showers or outbreaks of rain, but these lighter and more patchy by morning. Windy with early coastal gales, but strong winds gradually confined to eastern coastal areas. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Saturday:
Another rather cloudy day with a few mainly light showers, but some brighter spells developing in the afternoon, especially in the west. Windy across the Norfolk coast in the morning. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Showers developing on Sunday, with more persistent and heavier rain later. Bright or sunny intervals and locally heavy showers on Monday, and a few showers on Tuesday. Feeling cool throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.